Reaction Most Favorable On Kennedy Tax Message

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's speech on the nation's economic status and his decision to postpone a tax cut until next year seemed to be drawing more bouquets than bricks Tuesday.

The White House reported that telegrams received since the President spoke on radio and television Monday night run about 2-1 in favor of his stand. And a sampling of the reaction of business experts generally was favorable.

The criticism consisted chiefly of complaints that Kennedy was playing politics. Among those who disagreed with the bright economic picture he painted was Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., who said Kennedy's decision puts the country in a period of doubt as to whether it will slip into a recession.

Another Republican, Sen. Homer E. Capehart of Indiana, said Kennedy's speech "sounded like a continuation of his campaign speeches of 1960. He was plainly playing politics with a vital issue. I am for a tax cut now with a corresponding reduction in expenditures."

Humphrey Wants Cut

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Senate Democratic leader who has been urging an immediate tax cut to stimulate the economy, said he hasn't changed his view. But he said Kennedy made a very cogent argument against it.

Javits issued a statement saying "There is in my view a 'clear and present danger' of a recession notwithstanding the President's calming words." Most of the leading indicators are pointing down, he said.

Senate and House Democratic leaders, after their weekly breakfast meeting with Kennedy, told newsmen they are wholeheartedly in favor of what he said. They said they intend to push the six bills the President emphasized in his speech are needed "to speed up our economy."

Kennedy's bid for passage of the legislation got a lift Tuesday when the Senate voted to limit debate on the communications satellite bill. Cutting off the filibuster on this increased the chances of Congress getting around to the "must" measures before adjourning in time for election-year campaigning.

Hopes For Action

But some legislation Kennedy did not mention also will get prompt attention. Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said after the satellite bill is out of the way he hopes to get action on the drug bill, a farm program, and the nomination of Negro leader Thurgood Marshall to be a Circuit Court judge.

As for the measures Kennedy listed, Mansfield said "the leadership intends to do its very best to see he does get those bills." Business experts asked about Kennedy's speech included Martin Gainsburgh, chief economist for the National Industrial Conference Board. He called Kennedy's analysis well-balanced except "he didn't place as much emphasis as I thought he should have on the sluggishness of the capital investment sector of the economy."

Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co., a Wall Street investment analyst, said of the speech: "I think he honestly laid the issues on the line. He is very much aware of the potentials of the economy both up and down."

Another analyst, William R. White of Hornblower & Weeks, called the speech realistic.

'Soviets Orbiting, We're Filibustering'

Senate Votes For Cloture On Satellite Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate voted for the first time since the prohibition era Tuesday to impose a time limit on debate and clear the way for a space age bill.

By a tally of 63-27 in favor of adopting cloture, the Senate rolled up the required two-thirds of those voting with three to spare. The historic roll call came after Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, cried out that "The Soviet is orbiting and we're filibustering."

It broke through a talk barrier that has stalled the administration's communications satellite bill since July 25.

The bill, which passed the House on May 3 by a 354-9 vote, would provide for a private, government-regulated corporation to own and operate this country's share of a projected global network of orbiting relay stations.

Opponents have been battling for government ownership, contending the private corporation would be ruled by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Not since Feb. 28, 1927, when the issue was a bill to create a Bureau of Customs and Prohibition, had the Senate previously voted to restrain the flow of its own oratory.

Adoption of cloture, or debate closing, means that each senator is limited to one hour's further discussion of the space communications bill. Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois predicted the bill will be passed later this week without any major amendments. He said he had been informed that only about 20 senators wanted to discuss it at any length.

Dirksen joined Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic majority leader, in sponsoring the petition to invoke the 45-year-old cloture rule.

Mansfield told his colleagues that the outcome was neither victory nor defeat for either side but

"a victory for good sense."

Voting for cloture were 29 Democrats and 4 Republicans. Recorded against it were 25 Democrats and 2 Republicans. Florida's two senators, Spessard L. Holland and George A. Smathers, were the only Southern Democrats voting to break the filibuster.

In addition to the 90 senators who answered the roll call, three others were recorded through a pair. These were Sens. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M. and Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, who favored cloture, and Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., who was against it. On issues requiring a two-thirds majority, two affirmative votes form a "pair" against one negative vote.

These seven senators who normally oppose cloture were not recorded: Alan Bible, D-Nev., Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., Carl Hayden, D-Ariz., B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., John L. McClellan, D-Ark., and A. Willis Robertson, D-Va.

Until Tuesday, the debate-limiting rule had been invoked only four times since it was placed on the books in 1917. The first time was in 1919 on the Versailles Treaty, again in 1926 on the World Court, and twice in 1927, on the McCadden banking bill and the customs-prohibition measure.

Action On Soblen Is Delayed

LONDON (AP)—Convicted spy Robert A. Soblen has gained at least eight more days in Britain in his long fight to keep from serving a life sentence in the United States.

His attorneys applied to England's High Court on Tuesday for a writ of habeas corpus so that Soblen could go to Communist Czechoslovakia if he so desired. Then they presented an affidavit from Soblen saying he has a visa to go there.

They claimed Home Secretary Richard Brooke exceeded his authority in insisting that the 61-year-old psychiatrist be sent to New York to serve the sentence imposed for passing wartime secrets to the Soviet Union.

They intimated they would carry the case to Britain's highest court if Justice John Stephenson denies the writ.

After hearing arguments on Soblen's behalf but none from the British government, Stephenson continued the case until Aug. 22. Both sides then will get an opportunity to present their positions in detail.

If a long appeal procedure is undertaken, Soblen probably will still be in the hospital wing of London's Brixton Prison well into September or even longer.

A court of appeal could be assembled in this vacation period in the week beginning Aug. 27. A further proceeding could be carried to the tribunal of last resort, the House of Lords, Sept. 6.

Soblen, who is said to suffer from leukemia, was not in court for the hearing. After the adjournment, one of his lawyers said Soblen now is in excruciating pain and in the last three weeks has lost 17 pounds in weight.

Bare Destroyed Records In Probe On Stockpiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government auditor testified Tuesday somebody burned records that told the story of giant stockpile deal profits by a nickel company once headed by former Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey.

Walter H. Henson said he couldn't find out who ordered the M. S. Hanna Corp. records destroyed. He advised investigating senators to go to the top and question Humphrey and his son Gilbert about the documents.

The records covered periods in 1932, 1933 and 1954, Henson said. Humphrey, 72, a Cleveland industrialist who was secretary of the Treasury during the first four years of the Eisenhower administration, is due on the witness stand Thursday.

Will Testify Thursday

"Everything I have to say about this whole thing will be said when I testify in Washington Thursday morning," Humphrey said in Cleveland Tuesday. "I'll issue a statement just before then." Humphrey will appear at his own request.

In Cleveland, W. A. Marting, president of Hanna Mining Co., said in a statement: "We have heard through newspaper channels that there was testimony today before the Senate Stockpiling Committee regarding destruction of some of our records. Until we have seen exactly what was said, we have no comment to make, except that we have not destroyed any records that should properly have been kept."

Henson, a General Accounting Office auditor who spent months looking into affairs of the Hanna concerns, said the records were destroyed in February and March.

President Kennedy last January called for a congressional inquiry into the nation's huge stockpile of strategic materials. That touched off the current investigation by a Senate Armed Services subcommittee.

Eisenhower Defends

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower already has come to Humphrey's defense.

"If Secretary Humphrey ever did a dishonest thing, then I am ready to mount on the cross and you can put the nails in and the spear," Eisenhower said in June as the subcommittee headed by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., pointed its inquiry toward the Hanna contracts. "He never did a dishonest thing."

Henson told the subcommittee two Hanna subsidiaries made more than $39 million supplying stockpile nickel under contracts signed a few days before Humphrey joined the Eisenhower Cabinet. Henson said the profits were realized on capital investments of about $4.5 million.

Humphrey joined M. A. Hanna in 1918, became president in 1929, and resigned as board chairman Dec. 17, 1952. He now is honorary chairman.

Henson testified Monday that Gilbert W. Humphrey, son of the former Cabinet officer, served as president of Hanna Nickel Smelting Co. He said that firm was incorporated on Jan. 15, 1953, the day before the Hanna stockpile contracts were signed.

Henson said he learned of the missing records when he went to Cleveland to look into company files.

There, Henson said, he found cards which showed some records had been destroyed earlier this year.

He said destruction of the records hampered the investigation and violated the government contracts.

Rumors Persist On Thursday Landing

MOSCOW (Wednesday) (AP)—Russia's two earth-circling astronauts, unshaven but jaunty, lullabyed each other to sleep and their twin spaceships sped on to new orbit mileage records Tuesday, Tass reported.

There was no indication when the two would return from the space voyages that began a day apart last weekend. The latest unconfirmed reports said they would descend Thursday noon.

Before turning in for the night's sleep, Maj. Andrian "Falcon" Nikolayev and Lt. Col. Pavel "Golden Eagle" Popovich said, "The outlined flight program will be carried out fully."

Fabulous Mileages
A Tass communique at 9 p.m. Tuesday, Moscow time (1 p.m. EST) said Nikolayev had completed 55 orbits covering more than 2.3 million kilometers (1,428 million miles) and Popovich had recorded 39 orbits covering 1.6 million kilometers (993,600 miles).

Tass did not identify the good-night tune the astronauts sang each other by radio. The agency said they were asleep a short time later.

Nikolayev was in his fifth day without a bath or shave. The heavy stubble on his face showed through on a television broadcast that officials said came from his spaceship. For Popovich, it was the fourth day in space.

Judging from the television transmissions, the astronauts would have difficulty shaving, even if they had razors. They open the visors of their helmets infrequently and when they do the slow, somewhat unsure movements of their hands would not encourage the use of a razor.

Western tracking stations reported earlier that the space ships had moved several hundred miles apart, but the cosmonauts radioed in a message to Premier Khrushchev and the Soviet people: "We are now at a close distance from each other. A good contact is established."

Presumably, when the climactic hour of descent comes Nikolayev and Popovich will be routed to the central Volga valley where other Soviet space ships have landed.

Their space mileage far surpasses the distance from the moon to the earth, which ranges from 221,463 to 252,710 miles.

Visit The Planets

A Kazakhstan scientist, Kanysh Satpayev, commented: "Now it can be said with confidence that the time is not far off when man will visit the planets closest to us, first the moon, Mars and Venus." Venus ranges from 25 million to 136 million miles from the earth; Mars from 35 million to 248 million.

For more than four hours Tuesday there was no running report on the cosmonauts Moscow radio announcers kept repeating a noon bulletin.

Then came a flash, credited to the Soviet news agency Tass: "The Soviet satellite ships Vostok III and Vostok IV continue their prolonged group flight around the globe."

"Having accustomed themselves to the conditions of the prolonged space flight, the cosmonauts continue systematic scientific observations," Tass said.

Move About In Ships

"In accordance with the program, Nikolayev and Popovich now and again release themselves from the suspension system, leave their seats and study the influence of weightlessness on coordination of movements and ability to work during a space flight. The cosmonauts are feeling fine and are in high spirit."

Although a communique said they were moving about in their ships, there was no visible proof of this. The images on television showed only that they turned their heads from side to side, used their hands, or sat up slightly.

Tass relayed a stream of radio messages from the astronauts. Popovich: "Golden Eagle calling. Everything is in order. Have perfect communications with Falcon. Now studying English. Intend to study physics after dinner."

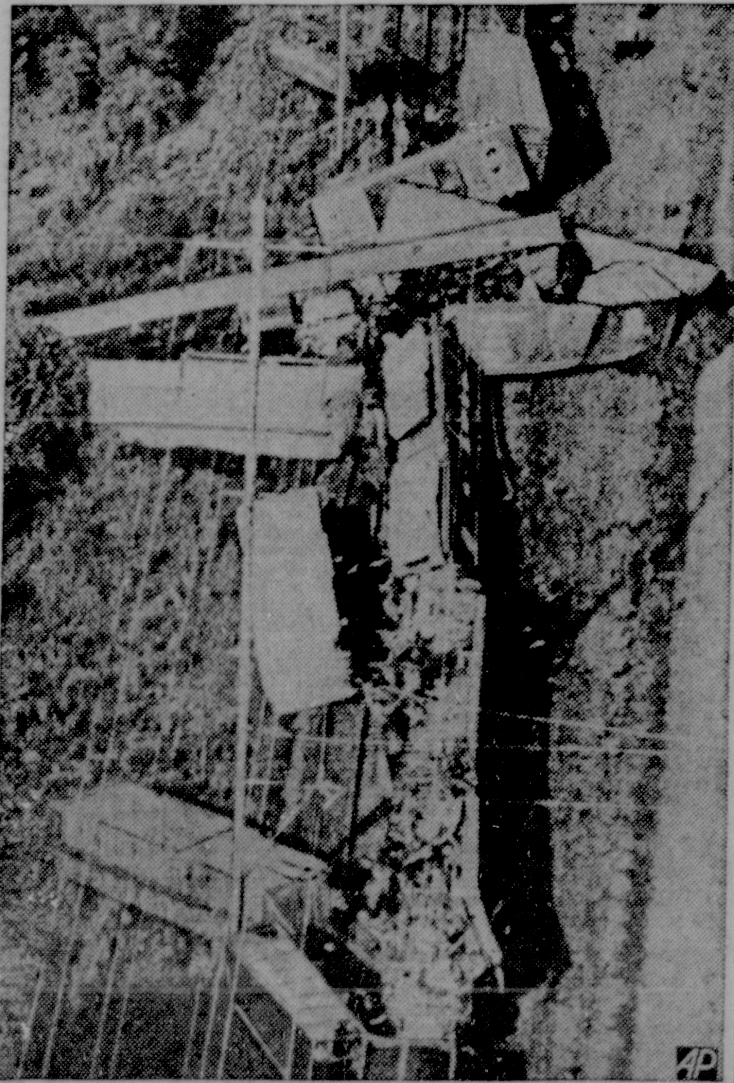

Nikolayev, to the United States: "Flying over your great country, I convey from the Soviet spaceship Vostok III greetings to the gifted American people. I wish peace and happiness to the people of your country."

Popovich and Nikolayev, responding to radioed congratulations of friends: "Everything goes well with us. All the systems function perfectly. We have every comfort in the ships. We shall live up to your hopes. Until we meet again soon, love and kisses."

Solon Backs Anti-Tocks Dam Group

SUPPORT for the Anti-Dam Committee of Bushkill, opponents of the proposed Tocks Island Dam, has been received from Representative Paul Dague (R-Pa.).

In a letter to the committee, Dague wrote:

"You must remember that my original comments on this subject (Tocks Island Dam) are based entirely on the conclusion that small up-stream dams are preferable and also on the quite evident fact that any federal money that would go into Tocks Island would have to be borrowed, since it seems that each recurring year finds our government operating in the red."

Meanwhile, committee members have laid plans for an automobile parade through Bushkill Saturday. Participants are expected from New London, Conn.; Jackson Heights, N. Y.; Syracuse, N. Y.; Ithaca, N. Y.; Wellsville, N. Y.; Bayonne, N. J.; Elizabeth, N. J.; Pahaquarry Township, N. J.; New Brunswick, N. J.; Maplewood, N. J.; Bushkill and Dingman's Ferry.

Also participating will be Salvador Perl, a native of Buenos Aires, Argentina, now employed by Schmitzer Alloy Products Co. of Elizabeth, N. J.

All participants oppose the Tocks Island Dam Project and are either former residents or summer vacationers in the area.

The parade is scheduled to start at 11 a.m.

Depot Foreman, Last Day On Job

EARLE Liming, 65, of 20 Laurel Drive, Scranton, who had been employed at the Tobyhanna United States Army Depot since 1964, died at 11:30 a. m. yesterday after filing for retirement from 20 years of government service.

He had been a foreman in the storage division and the retirement was to have become effective Sept. 5. He had signed out of the depot just prior to his death.

Born in Manasquan, N.J., Mr. Liming began working for the government at Camp Evans, Belmar, N.J. in 1942.

Mr. Liming transferred to Tobyhanna in 1954 when the Baltimore Depot was closed by the Defense Department. He had been there for 11 years.

He recently received an award for sustained superior performance.

Mr. Liming is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Liming, at home, a former employee of the Tobyhanna installation.

The couple had arranged to move to Dundalk, Md., when the retirement became effective.

Dorothy Lisette Fund Started Friends Rally To Aid Victim

A SIMPLE carpet tack had a double point for one of Monroe County's favorite people. The first point was an injurious one. It put Miss Dorothy Lisette in the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Earlier in the week of July 15, Miss Lisette stepped on some carpet tacks and was unaware of the accident. She has been "not quite up to par" for more than a year and a half. On occasion, she had to cancel student lessons because she was not well enough to teach.

When she was admitted to the hospital, it was discovered she had an advanced case of diabetes. Because of it, infection set in the left foot and complications developed in the recovery process.

To save Miss Lisette's life, an amputation was necessary. It came as a crushing blow to a woman who for her 57 years has been dependent on herself and never needed to lean on anyone. She has been hospitalized for a month and financial problems have mounted.

Alone in the world Miss Lisette has nowhere to turn. But her friends and students know different.

To aid Miss Lisette, a fund has been established. $2,000 has been set as the goal to help defray medical, financial, and living expenses until Miss Lisette is able to be self-sustaining. Checks may be made out to Alberta L. Yutz, and mailed in care of the Editorial Department, The Daily Record, 511 Lenox St., Stroudsburg. Cash contributions may also be sent in care of Mrs. Yutz, Editorial Department, Daily Record, Stroudsburg.

Canadian-Born

Since Miss Lisette was born in Canada, she is not eligible for assistance on the same basis as a United States citizen. Her birth certificate has been lost and records are not available to arrange for her citizenship. She had tried for nearly 10 years to get the necessary background to become an American citizen. But all was to no avail.

In the past, Miss Lisette, has made music the center of her life, and knowing she had a good thing, she hasn't been stingy in sharing it with others. Her pupils through the more than 30 years in which she has taught voice and piano lessons in Monroe County, have learned to love music as much as she does.

In some cases, her students have gone on to make music their careers. While others have simply enjoyed the freedom of expression that her lessons have given them.

A musical past as colorful as the lights of New York City is one of Miss Lisette's proud possessions. She was discovered by the owner of the famous Roxy theater in New York and became a featured contralto soloist. In 1926 and 1927 she won both gold and silver stars in an international Canadian competition. And, many thousands of others have heard her professional voice by way of radio from Toronto and Buffalo.

Very Active

When Miss Lisette came to Monroe County to live, she not only handled voice and piano studies, but became active in church music. For 12 years, she sang solos at the Kirk-in-the-Woods, providing music for the summer ministry of that retreat.

She took on the responsibility of turning out a church choir for the Zion United Church of Christ, Stroudsburg, a capacity she has filled for a number of years. Children have begun singing in the junior choir and have moved up to the senior choir under her tutelage. She handled the position of Sunday School Superintendent at the Arlington Heights Methodist Church in addition to the duties of singing with members.

Singing is her first love and she made sure that others were introduced to it by activity in the Music Study Club of the Stroudsburgs. She led the Junior Women's Club chorus for some time. The Laurel Ensemble, directed by Miss Lisette was known throughout the county for more than 12 years for their pro-life concerts, the proceeds from which went to charity.

All of these things have been credited to Miss Lisette over a period of more than 30 years. She was born in Canada and came to the Stroudsburgs as a young girl with her parents, Patrick and Minnie Lisette.

Patrick Lisette was known to many people as "Pierre" during the time he was chief steward at the Penn-Strood Hotel, Stroudsburg. Minnie died in 1943 and Patrick in 1944, leaving Miss Lisette alone.

She became even more active in musical work in the county, after giving lessons to children who showed promise when they were unable to play.

One Hurt In Two-Car Accident

ONE person was injured in a two-car accident at 10:58 a.m. yesterday, two miles west of Tannersville on the Reiders Road.

State Police at Mt. Pocono said a car operated by H. Marlene Woodling, 24, Stroudsburg, RD 3, was backing from a private drive into the highway when it was struck by an east-bound station wagon driven by Arthur H. Klempinger, 25, of 1535 Fairmount Ave., Allentown.

Yvonne Pipher, six, Reiders, a passenger in the Woodling car, suffered a cut of the back of the head and was treated by Dr. George Zahner of Tannersville.

Damage was estimated at $1,300 to the station wagon and $1,200 to the Woodling car.

Two Horse Shows Slated For 41st West End Fair

GILBERT — Two horse shows will be featured Aug. 29 and 30 during the 41st annual West End Fair at the fair grounds in Gilbert. This will be the second annual year the Association will hold a horse show.

Both shows will be run in the show ring that was added to the growing facilities of the fair grounds.

Charles Hendry, Gilbert, will be show chairman for the West End Fair horse show 10:30 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 30. Howard Lininger will serve as announcer and George Freeman as ringmaster. The grounds will be in charge of James Frailey. All men are from Stroudsburg.

The program will feature western, english, jumping and time events. The show will start with model stock horse to be shown at halter and will be judged on conformation, soundness, manners and way-of-going. This will be followed by the western trail horse class.

Balance of the morning events will include: saddle seat equitation, break and out for both western and english and junior hunting seat horsemanship.

Following the noon intermission, the afternoon schedule which gets underway at 1 p.m. will include: junior western pleasure horse, pole bending, serpentine jumping, junior stock saddle seat equitation, knock down and out, bridle path hacks, open jumpers, western stock horse and barrel racing.

One other feature will be a costume class open to any horse, pony, donkey or burro. Judging will be done on originality and manner of presentation.

4-H Horse Show

Wednesday, Aug. 29, at 1:30 p.m. the Monroe County 4-H horse and pony club open house show will be held. The show will be open to any 4-H member with proper identification. All events will be run according to the 1962 Pennsylvania 4-H rules and regulations.

Events will include an English and western championship trophy. Classes will include: grooming and showmanship, english and western pleasure, open jumping, western reining, english horsemanship, flag, rescue, egg, relay and trail, pole bending, clover leaf barrel racing and knock down and out.

Also to be featured during the show will be demonstrations by the Monroe County 4-H horse and Pony club drill team and a square dance team.

Entries in both shows must be made at least a half hour before the class begins. Four entries will be required to fill a class. Trophies and ribbons will be awarded winners in both shows.

Volunteers Prepare For Bloodmobile

MEN and women — volunteer workers with the Monroe County Chapter of the American Red Cross — are preparing for the next visit of the Bloodmobile, Wednesday, Aug. 22, 9:45 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. at the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church.

Staff aides, canteen workers, nurses aides, registered nurses, gray ladies and physicians, many with hundreds of hours of volunteer service, will be on duty to aid the professional staff collect the much needed blood. The Bloodmobile's theme this visit is "Donate A Pint of Blood, Please!"

Grenadiers To Practice

THE Keystone Grenadiers will practice at 7 p.m. today in East Stroudsburg Memorial Stadium for their Music in Motion program to be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday.

The Grenadiers represent Thomas P. Lambert Post 2540, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and George N. Kemp Post 346, American Legion.

The People Pay

What idea, what philosophy, dominated the minds of the men who founded this country, and laid down the principles they meant it to abide by?

Thomas Jefferson expressed a fundamental thought perfectly when he said: "I am for a government that is rigorously frugal and simple, and not for one that multiplies offices to make partisans, that is, to get votes, and by every device increases the public debt under the guise of being a public benefit."

Admittedly, there have been vast changes in the nation and the world since the great Jefferson's day. But this does not excuse the development of an attitude which makes the attraction of votes the paramount objective of great numbers of government officials who show small concern for the value of the dollar and who seek more and more monolithic and dictatorial power.

The people put up every dollar that is returned to them by government through welfare state charity. And they pay not only in money but in the infinitely more important coin of lost liberty.

Our Tax Climate

Critics of Pennsylvania's tax climate—particularly in its effect as a factor in attracting new industries to the state—might with profit study some figures recently made public by the U. S. Department of Commerce. Nobody will attempt to deny that taxes of all kinds have risen sharply in recent years. But every state has shared this experience and the test is the degree to which each state has held down its tax increases.

The federal department finds that during the past 20 years, local and state taxes in Pennsylvania have jumped 205 per cent. But the national average was 321 per cent. California's individual tax rise was 560 per cent, Arizona's 700 per cent. New York showed a boost in all taxes of 249 per cent.

Actually, with the exception of North Dakota, Pennsylvania, with its 205 per cent, had the lowest rate of increase in the entire nation. Already in the state political campaign Republican candidates have been talking in vague generalities about an "unhealthy" tax climate in Pennsylvania. The official figures of the federal government seem to give the lie to their campaign propaganda. Unfortunately, the danger is that their unfounded criticisms may actually jeopardize the continuing non-partisan effort to bring new industries into Pennsylvania to provide jobs for our vast army of unemployed.

The Soblen Case

The Soblen case becomes increasingly complex as more countries with their varying laws become involved in it. Even should Soblen be returned to the United States before this article appears in type, the subject is still intriguing from a moral and legal standpoint.

Soblen is a convicted spy. He jumped bail of $100,000 which those who went bail for him shrugged off apparently without much concern. Even rich people do not wish to lose $100,000.

Soblen, when he jumped bail, chose to take a plane to Israel. He chose Israel without the consent of that nation. He travelled on the passport of his dead brother who used another name. Although Soblen was a convicted spy he was not under surveillance either by the U. S. Attorney's office, the FBI, or the New York police. There were no control officers at the airport to prevent a convicted criminal from leaving the country.

Soblen arrived in Israel and registered in a hotel. The Israeli government was embarrassed because to bring immigrants to the country and to justify its existence as a state, Israel has a "Law of Return" which permits every Jew, except a convicted criminal, to return to the Jewish homeland from wherever he may be and to become a citizen of Israel immediately.

As regards Soblen, the question arose as to whether he is a criminal or a political offender. While this question was being argued, the Israeli government put him on an El Al plane where he staged his suicide which he himself declared was phony. He landed in London and was sent to a prison hospital.

In England, his case went through the processes of law and he lost. In Israel, it is a moot question whether his case went through due process of law. Meanwhile, Czechoslovakia, a Communist country, intervened to offer him refuge.

The British washed their hands of Soblen in accordance with their law and judicial procedure. It is not possible to complain of their conduct. Israel found itself in a political turmoil. The left wing parties in that country, always a nuisance, demanded that if an El Al plane were used to effect his return, he be sent to Israel and not to the United States.

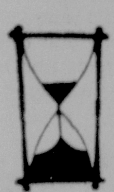

This violates all international traditions, customs, and agreements on returned passengers, including stowaways. If the El Al airplane does not return Soblen to the United States, this country and Great Britain would both be justified in refusing this line landing privilege. Certainly the United States would be warranted, in taking that position.

If Israel retaliated by forbidding American aircraft to land in Israel, that would be a minor and economically. The principal issue in this case is the freedom of escape. This is not a right or a privilege and the airline becomes a confederate of the criminal—perhaps unwillingly.

The United States has no extradition treaty with Brazil and if Brazil enjoys having American criminals and swindlers, we can do nothing about it, except to retaliate by not permitting Brazilian coffee to enter this country.

That seems drastic except that one begins to wonder whether we are a nation of men or mice. Our tax dodgers put their money in half a dozen havens, the leading country that engages in this being Switzerland. No agency of our government is doing anything about it. President Kennedy's proposal to withhold dividends might have been a step toward plugging up the lines to the tax havens, but whoever wrote that bill got it twisted.

We have all kinds of airlines and private planes moving about

Bad Results From Another Doubtful Tranquilizer?

By Mason Denison (Last of Three Parts)

Harrisburg — The now a-building 1575-mile system of Interstate highways in Pennsylvania — the high speed, four-lane divided expressways of tomorrow — is the "glamor girl" of the highway system, but what of the Keystone State's 14,807-mile Primary system, the "workhorse" of the highway network?

Yesterday this column detailed the results of the AASHO National Road Test on specifications for highway construction used by the Pennsylvania Department of Highways, showing a "serviceability rating" of 4.5 (scale: 0 to 5) or "very good" for concrete specs, and 3.5, or "good" for Pennsylvania asphalt specs. (All but 25 miles of the 1575-mile Interstate system call for concrete.)

Insofar as Pennsylvania's 14,807-mile Primary highway system is concerned — mostly two-lane but some four-lane highways connecting all cities in the state and most major towns — the two-year AASHO test results are equally interesting.

It should be noted that while the fancy Interstate system is designed to adequately carry maximum traffic loads and volumes, it has been found after intensive research that the Primary system can in some locations be designed for lesser degrees of traffic, weights, and volumes.

With a truck single-axle load maximum of 22,400 pounds (legal limit in Pennsylvania) the Highway specifications nine or ten-inch concrete pavement on a six-inch subbase — for Primary highways.

The AASHO National Road Test performance showed the test section of 9 1/2 inches of reinforced concrete on a six-inch subbase not only ran the full series of 1,114,000 load applications with the maximum 22,400 single axle loads, but also wound up with a "serviceability index" of 4.5 — with a classification of "very good."

As for asphalt, generally the heaviest asphalt highways on Pennsylvania's Primary system comprise three inches of asphalt surface, 12 inches of base and six inches of subbase. These exact specifications were not in the AASHO Road Test, but again using the official AASHO conversion formula, the Pennsylvania Department of Highway specifications would be the equivalent of the AASHO test section of four inches of asphalt surface, nine inches of base, and eight inches of subbase.

During the test this section failed and was taken out of test after only 490,000 load applications (less than half of the full-run 1,114,000 "run-overs" of the two-year test period) in the 22,400-pound single-axle load (maximum weight permitted on Pennsylvania highways). The section was not given a "serviceability rating" because it could not complete the series.

In some sections of Pennsylvania's Primary road system, road construction to meet the demands of the maximum 22,400 single axle load is unnecessary. In such instances the Department of Highways designs for a "lesser load", using for example the 18,000-pound single axle load criteria.

On such highway areas, Pennsylvania Department of Highway specifications call for, where concrete is used, nine inches of concrete on six inches of subbase. The AASHO Road Test involved only eight inches of concrete on a six-inch subbase. This section ran the full test and the maximum 1,114,000 applications. The "serviceability rating" given by AASHO was 4.4 — or in the AASHO lexicon: "very good."

Pennsylvania asphalt specifications for the same type of Primary roadway call for three inches of asphalt surfacing, 10 or 12 inches of base and six inches of subbase. Again using the AASHO conversion formula, the corresponding AASHO asphalt section would comprise four inches of asphalt surface, six inches of base and 12 inches of subbase.

The AASHO results for this type of paving: The section ran through the entire test and was not taken out of service before the end of the total 1,114,000 load applications, but wound up with a "serviceability rating" of 1.9 — or in the AASHO classification: "poor."

These then are the results of this somewhat historic highway test; set up not by a single interested industry, not by a single state, or even by the federal government alone. The tests were the combined work of state and federal officials, highway paving industries — with the overall test administered and directed by the Highway Research Board of the National Academy of Sciences, National Research Council.

No conclusions were drawn in the test series — and none are being drawn by this column.

News From The Realm Of Stamps

The United States coming issues are the twenty-fifth anniversary of the National Apprenticeship Act August 31 at Washington, D.C., and the Sam Rayburn Memorial Commemorative September 16 at Bonham, Texas, both four-cent issues. The Dag Hammarskjöld Commemorative scheduled for October 24 has had no first day city announced.

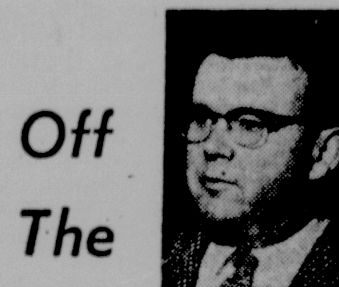

Canada has announced a change in its regular issues but no dates have been released but no dates have been released. They plan to change the Queens picture on the one issue a new one-dollar stamp.

There is talk that the proposed Christmas issue will become one of the regular series and that it will have first day sale in fifty cities—one in each state. If this report is true it will be the first time each state has had a first day of issue at the same time.

In the past there have been two or three cities that have had the same issue for first day sale but never all the States at the same time. No date has as yet been announced but the thought is that it will be sometime around Thanksgiving.

Washington, August 15 — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee's forthcoming investigation of lobbyists for foreign governments and interests is causing quite a bit of uneasiness in high State Department quarters.

Certain top officials are worriedly trying to find out how far this dynamite-loaded probe will go.

Reason for their concern is that they have been foreign lobbyists themselves.

Foremost among them are Undersecretary of State George Ball and Foreign Aid Administrator Fowler Hamilton.

Both are aware the Foreign Relations Committee has dug up official records showing that some years ago Ball and Hamilton were very active lobbyists in behalf of legislation favorable to Cuban sugar growers and mill owners.

According to these records, Ball received more than $20,000 — making him the all-time highest-paid foreign sugar lobbyist.

These official files also reveal that Ball hired more than a score of other lawyers in this massive lobbying drive in Congress. A number of these lawyers concentrated on influencing

The Allen-Scott Report

Probe Of Lobbyists Worries Former Lobbyists

lawmakers with whom they had ties.

Also important U.S. business firms were vigorously propagandized to back Ball's Cuban sugar clients.

This significant heavily-financed and wide-ranging lobbying operation is spelled out in detail in the published hearings of an investigation of "political activities, lobbying and campaign contributions" conducted in December 1966 by a special Senate committee.

Chairman was Senator John McClellan, D-Ark., now head of the Labor Rackets Investigating Committee which has conducted numerous hard-hitting probes ranging from Teamster mogul James Hoffa to the maledorous Billie Sol Estes scandal.

Other committee members included Senators Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Albert Gore, D-Tenn.

BIG-TIME LOBBYIST — At the time of this investigation, Ball was a member of a large law firm with offices in Washington, Wall Street and Paris.

His client was the United States Cuban Sugar Council. Its aim was to make sure that its interests were well taken care of in the new Sugar Act Congress would have to pass when the then-existing law expired.

For this purpose, Ball organized and conducted a nationwide campaign to line up U.S. business interests to back the Cuban Sugar Council. Following is how he explained that to the Senate investigators:

"We reached the conclusion that the maintenance of an adequate sugar quota for Cuba was desirable in the interest of the American taxpayer, the American consumer, and the great body of American industrialists and agriculturists who sold their produce in Cuba, and that it was in the best economic interest of the United States."

"The problem of Cuba was finding in the United States individuals and corporations who were residents of the United States, whose areas were directly represented in Congress, who could speak as American nationals, and whose economic interests were very closely identified with those of Cuba, so that they had a stake in speaking for the preservation of an adequate sugar quota for Cuba."

The Senate probes were curious as to why Ball employed so many lawyers. He explained that as follows:

"We employed law firms in five areas in the U.S., and supplied them with the list of American firms doing business in or selling goods to Cuba) with the idea that they would make direct contact with these firms and advise them of their interest in the Cuban market."

"Did you regard that as lobbying or educational activity?" asked Senator McClellan.

"All the activities of these correspondent counsel around the country, including the activities of our Washington and New York offices in making contacts with American suppliers and educating them," replied Ball, "we regarded as lobbying and so reported in our lobbying report."

"How many people were actually employed in this endeavor?" asked George M. Fay, committee counsel.

"There were 23 altogether," answered Ball.

"And those telephone calls to American suppliers were for the purpose of urging them to be active in behalf of your legislation," continued Senator McClellan.

"That's right," acknowledged Ball. "They did make some contacts, and some of the law firms made contacts with members of Congress. Some did not."

COSTLY LOBBYING — In response to questions, Ball disclosed that "contact" was made with a top official in the White House — Dr. Gabriel Hauge, special economic adviser to President Eisenhower.

"I think I called two or three times on Dr. Hauge," said Ball, "and gave him a copy of our brief and explained our position to him."

"Was that when the bill was pending in Congress?" asked Fay.

"It was after the bill had been introduced in April 1965, and before the House committee hearings got underway," replied Ball.

After a series of questions aimed at ascertaining how much Ball received for these lobbying operations, Senator McClellan said: "According to your testimony, the total amount you got in connection with this legislation is $271,327.31."

"That is right," agreed Ball. "Those are the receipts from the point of view of my firm."

"The fee is included in the $271,000," said McClellan.

"That is correct," said Ball. "You reported $271,327 as receipts and expenditures?"

"That is correct," said Ball. "That is the total money received and to be expended on this account."

"What is the actual amount for lobbying?"

"On what we have received so far, we have reported $60,000 for lobbying," replied Ball. "That is purely an estimate, but there will be another $27,000. We have not yet filed that because we have not received it. But I think it will be in that neighborhood."

"Then roughly a total of $87,000 for lobbying?"

"Somewhere in that neighborhood," agreed Ball.

Justice Department records show that Foreign Aid Administrator Fowler Hamilton was among the numerous lawyers employed by Ball in these extensive Cuban sugar lobbying operations.

Let's Face Facts

By William A. Doyle

Q. Not so long ago, your column stated flatly that "we are now in a period where inflation has all the earmarks of being set to take off at a gallop." Since then President Kennedy has officially announced to the world that the United States will not devalue the dollar.

How do you reconcile your flat statement with the President's reassuring announcement?

A. Let's face facts. Official devaluation (raising the dollar price of gold) is one thing. Inflation (which can easily be described as "unofficial devaluation") is another equally serious thing.

We should all hope that this country's international balance of payments (gold crisis) situation improves so that President Kennedy will be able to stick with his pledge not to officially devalue the dollar. But we should all remember that Franklin Delano Roosevelt made the same pledge, not too long before the last official devaluation of the U.S. dollar in 1933.

Right now, we have inflation in this country—monetary inflation. It is caused by deficit Federal financing—the U.S. government spending more money than it collects in taxes. Without going into all the complicated details, it can be explained that this has much the same result as turning on the presses to print more dollars.

All indications are that the Kennedy Administration will run up even bigger Federal deficits than we have seen so far. As U.S. government deficit spending goes sky high, you can figure inflation to take off at ever-increasing speed—a gallop.

An argument can be made that monetary inflation does not necessarily lead to price inflation—with each dollar buying less and less goods and service.

That may be true under certain circumstances. But hard-nosed economists who deal in time-tested principals, not wild-eyed dreams come to one simple conclusion: Under the circumstances now existing, monetary inflation (through deficit financing) leads to price inflation.

Q. You seem awfully pessimistic on the subject of inflation. What would you say about an investment in good income-producing real estate as protection against the possibility of the declining value of the dollar through inflation?

A. Good real estate properties have offered protection against inflation in the past and should continue to do so. When prices go up, as the result of inflation, the prices of good real estate properties usually go up as fast, or faster.

Just remember that investment in real estate can be quite tricky. Be sure you investigate each deal. Know the property involved and the people with whom you are dealing. Above all, make certain that you have a competent lawyer.

Q. Do I have to pay state income tax on the interest I receive from my U.S. Treasury bonds?

A. No. This works two ways. The Federal government cannot tax the interest paid on "municipal bonds"—bonds issued by states and political subdivisions of states. Nor can states tax interest on U.S. government bonds.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

Monroe Countians Find Vacation Trips Up In '62

MONROE County residents who are off on vacation trips by automobile this summer are finding that the daily tab is somewhat higher than it was last year.

It now costs $31 a day per couple while on the road, or $2 more than in 1961, for those whose spending habits are average.

The figure, reported by the Automobile Club of New York, is based on driving 300 miles a day. It includes $7 a day for car operation, $10.50 for meals and snacks, $11 for overnight lodging and $2.50 for tolls and miscellaneous expenses.

This year's traveler is discovering, also, that his tax bill on gasoline, sales and cigarettes is higher, in many areas, than it was before.

Vacation Map
According to a "vacation tax map" released by the Commerce Clearing House, there remain only 14 states that do not call for a sales tax on purchases made along the way. In the 36 states that do have such a tax, it ranges from 2 to 4 percent.

State gasoline taxes, in effect all over, start at 5 cents a gallon and go as high as 8 cents.

Cigarette taxes, collected by 47 states, go from 2 cents a pack to 8 cents.

In addition, there are Federal taxes and, in some areas, municipal taxes on these items.

Taxes In State
For travelers in Pennsylvania, the state taxes are 7 cents for gasoline, 4 percent for sales and 6 cents for cigarettes.

But what about the other expenses connected with the ownership and operation of a car? How much does it cost the Monroe County owner on an annual basis?

Latest figures released by the American Automobile Association show that, for the typical driver of a popular-price, standard car that is driven the average distance of 10,000 miles, it came to $1,204 in the past year.

With 15,600 passenger cars in the county, as of the end of 1961, approximately $18,782,000 was spent on car maintenance and operation by local drivers.

Some $3,839,000 of this went to the gas service stations in Monroe County.

The rest was accounted for by insurance, registration and license fees and depreciation.

Chess Club Drives For Members

APPEAL for immediate revival in chess club interest as a tribute to the memory of John M. Price was made this week at the regular meeting of the Stroudsburg Chess Club by Harold James, club president.

Price was first president of the club. Price died during the summer of 1961. A man of varied civic activities, he became a paragon from injuries sustained during World War II.

President James said the members "could give no better tribute to the memory of their beloved leader and friend than to work with enthusiasm for the organization that was so near to his heart."

Members attending the meeting also welcomed John Erickson of Harpersville, N. Y., a teacher and veteran chess player.

A highlight of the meeting was a contest between Robert Hickey, who once defeated Erickson, and President James. James won two of three.

'Crazy Old Owl' Viewed As 'Beautifully Cast' Play

MOUNTAINHOME — This week at the Pocono Playhouse Rowena Stevens is presenting a new play, "Crazy Old Owl," by John S. Rodell. The play, billed as a comedy, attempts to satirize certain kinds of thinking about education.

Just Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

The art of gentle insult is one of the quickest ice breakers and one that Gene Powers uses with great skill. Take the "get-acquainted dinner" for the Navy Reserve Officers program now under way at the college for instance.

Of all ages, from 21 states, with different occupations, different interests, some with wives and children, some on their own; to wield them into a single unit takes skill. It can be done by playing on hatred, which gets a mob going; it can be done with laughter — which gets a party going.

Nothing can kill a dinner party quicker than a lot of fullsome introductions of the important personages present, embarrassing the personages and boring the audience. But a gentle ribbing of the President of the College, the dean of instruction, the mayor of the town, and the state representative will do it.

And the personages seem to love it. After all, it gets the audience on their side and the flow of sympathy is a heart-warming thing. Of course, there's another trick which Dr. Powers manages very well and that's drafting available talent.

Somehow he found a one-man band, a terrific story teller, a song leader all in the Navy ranks and then even reached outside to nap an innocent bystander, Howard Atwell, who brought down the house with his impromptu performance.

Seated in the midst of so much talent, I had a wonderful time even without Les Rossi's surprise entree of Cornish hens stuffed with wild rice. And incidentally got a chance to talk to Ann Atwell, who is taking her position as the first woman president of the East Stroudsburg Businessmen's Assn. with due modesty. However, she couldn't help being overjoyed with the success of their recent "Crazy Days" promotion.

Especially that barbecue when they served more than 400 people in a few hours in the bank lobby. All the merchants seem to feel that there's a new spirit of camaraderie and unity abroad in the borough — and that too takes skill.

The only trouble with all this one-for-all and all-for-one, marching-along-together esprit de corps is that I stay one place just long enough to catch it and then I have to go marching off on my lone to go back to work. Cinderella, that's me.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Steven DeWitt
(George Arnold)

Miss Martha Ann Bonser Bride Of Larry DeWitt

Miss Martha Ann Bonser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Bonser, of Stroudsburg, RD 3, became the bride of Larry Steven DeWitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Godfrey, of 1028 Memorial Ave., Williamsport, on Aug. 4 at 2 p. m. in the Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg.

Rev. William F. Wunder performed the ceremony. The church was decorated with sprays of gladioli with white carpet and white bows marking the family pews. Percy Whitman, soloist, sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore white lace and satin. The bodice of Alencon lace featured a Peter Pan collar and long sleeves, ending in points at the wrist. The full skirt of satin was covered with silk illusion falling to a chapel train. A tiara of seed pearls held her finger-tip veil of silk illusion. She carried a white Bible with white carnations and baby's breath with white streamers caught with sprigs of baby's breath.

Mrs. Geraldine Rodenbaugh of Stroudsburg, RD 3, was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a street-length dress of pink lace with a Peter Pan collar and puffed sleeves and carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations. Her flowered headpiece held a shoulder-length veil.

Bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor Tucker and Miss Patricia Detrick, both of Stroudsburg. Miss Tucker wore a dress of green satin covered with white lace with a scoop neckline. Miss Detrick wore a dress of yellow chiffon with a scoop neckline. They both carried cascade bouquets of yellow carnations with ribbons to match their dresses, and matching shoulder-length veils.

Miss Anna Hines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hines, Marshall's Creek, was flower girl. She wore a dress of peach nylon with a shoulder-length veil held by a crown and carried a basket of pink and white carnations and baby's breath with white ribbon streamers.

Allen Scott Rodenbaugh, nephew of the bride, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Rodenbaugh, was the ring bearer. He wore a miniature tuxedo with dark trousers and white jacket and cummerbund matching the men of the wedding party. He carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

Harold J. Rodenbaugh, brother-in-law of the bride, served as best man. Ushers were Carl Whitman and Edward Bonser, brother of the bride.

A reception was held for 150 guests at the VFW Post dance hall. The hall was decorated with pink and blue streamers and white wedding bells. Frank Rogers and his Poconos band played during the reception.

The bride's mother wore an orchid dress with matching hat and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a gold sheath dress with matching hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations tied with a yellow ribbon.

For her going-away outfit, the bride wore a white street-length dress of chiffon with a lace jacket, pink accessories and the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

After a brief honeymoon in the area, Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt are now at home at 394 Lincoln Ave., East Stroudsburg.

The bride, a 1962 graduate of East Stroudsburg Area Joint High School, works in the office of Tri-State Newsdealers Supply Co. Mr. DeWitt was graduated from Other officers elected were Fred Learn, first vice president; John Herksker, second vice president; Mrs. Lorena Patterson, secretary-treasurer.

Miss Alta Learn was presented with a prize as the oldest woman; Fred Williams, oldest man; Daryl Miller, youngest child; Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Williams, longest married and Mrs. Pat Garriques, longest distance.

Among the 103 attending were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Smiley, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Miller Jr., Gregory Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Reaser, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Cyphers, Carl and Sarah Jane Cyphers, Ada Sandt, Lanette Lockard and Edna Mae Lee.

From Freeland: Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Carazza, Rudy, Drew and Linda Corazza, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Feissner, Jerry, Cora and Cathy Feissner, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Feissner and Stanley Oberender. From White Haven, Mrs. Emerson Weaver, Beverly and Bonnie Weaver, Michael Gyurko, Miss Alta Learn, Mrs. Karl Klotz, Mr. and Mrs. Clair Sipler and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Meier.

Members of the family also came from Weatherly, Hazleton, Beaver Brook, Allentown, Philadelphia, Montoursville, Norwood, Prospect Park, Abington, Warmminster, Churchville, Wilmington, Del., Baltimore, Md., Trenton and New Providence, N. J.; and Garden City, Brooklyn, Buffalo and Nyack, N. Y.

Brighter Days For American Male Plumage

Brighter days are ahead for the American male this fall as new, lighter, silver grays, shadow plaids and all varieties of stripes liven the man's suit picture.

"There's no reason why all men have to look like pallbearers this year," says Michael Daroff, president of H. Daroff & Sons, Inc. "For the last few seasons the black or charcoal gray suit has been practically a uniform for American men. Now it's time for a change."

The man in the gray flannel suit will choose one of the handsome new silver grays this fall, and may even add a pin, pencil or chalk stripe. Nothing garish, you understand — just a break in the all-black parade.

Glen plaids will return to the business suit line-up, and strong patterns and colors will go all out in sports wear, according to Botany 500 designers. There will be more browns in all tones, from the familiar black-coffee shades to light camelhair color, the latter seen particularly in sportcoats and topcoats for the first time in a number of years.

The slimmed-down look is the predominant silhouette for men — natural shoulders, two-button, single-breasted jackets, and narrow pleated or one-pleat trousers. Many of the new suits have vests once more — another welcome dividend for well-dressed men who never got used to the shirt-front look.

Good news for the traveling man is the introduction of wrinkle-resistant dacon and worsted suitings for fall — a fabric that has established wide popularity in light-weight summer clothing.

The funeraler era of men's fashions is definitely past, and the forecast is light and bright.

Little Chestnuts Hold Round-Up

Kunkletown — The annual 4-H Round-Up was held recently by the Little Chestnuts of Kunkletown in the Community Hall.

John E. Withrow, County Agent, was present for the round-up. All exhibitors will receive blue ribbons.

The group discussed holding a dance. The dance committee will make more definite plans.

Courthouse Area To Glow With Outdoor Art Show

The second of the Summer Outdoor Art Shows will be held on Friday and Saturday of this week at the Court House Square in Stroudsburg. At the July show this summer, 89 artists exhibited, spilling over into side streets.

The show is open to both amateur and professional artists, whether they are members of the Pocono Art Group or residents of the Poconos.

Pictures may be framed or unframed and in any media. A small registration fee covers any number of paintings. Artists are asked to bring camp chairs, clothes lines, easels and other material they may need for display. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fitzgerald are in charge of registration and space assignment.

There will be artists at work on both days, and all works will be for sale.

Classic Cookies Add Flavor To Tea On Porch

We adapted this cookie from a recipe of the 1940's, and we think it's well worth reviving.

Cucumber Sandwiches with Boiled Dressing
Assorted Cheese Crackers
Brown Honey Bars
Iced or Hot Tea

Brown Honey Bars
1 cup sifted flour
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup dark honey
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats
1 cup shredded coconut
one-third cup coarsely broken walnuts

Sift together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Beat egg until thick and ivory colored. Cream together the butter, sugar, honey and vanilla; gently beat in sifted dry ingredients. Stir in rolled oats, coconut and walnuts. Turn into a buttered cake pan (9 by 9 by 1 1/4 inches) and spread evenly. Bake in a slow (325 degrees) oven 25 to 30 minutes, until top is brown and center doesn't "quake." Cool in pan on wire rack for 10 to 15 minutes; cut into bars while still warm; remove with spatula to rack to cool. Store in tightly covered container.

Note: If coconut is dry, moisten with 1 tablespoon orange juice.

Miss Harrison Honored At Bridal Shower

Miss Mildred Harrison, who will become the bride of LeRoy James Rinker on Sept. 1 at the Grace Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg, was the guest of honor at a bridal shower given by Mrs. Jean Dildine and Mrs. Doris Van Why.

Guests included fellow workers at Madison Shoe Co., and her mother, Mrs. Norman Possinger and her sister, Miss Ada Harrison. Present were Sandra Shaffer, Kay Fritz, Ada May Yoch, Della Tucker, Betty Frost, Berneda Van Why, Ann Baird, Mary Lou Whitaker, Barbara Counterman, Carol Parker and Jennie Odan.

Also invited were Mrs. Marian Hazen, Gretchen Weiss and Phyllis Lonengelli.

Music Marks Jennings Family Reunion

Bangor — The annual Jennings Reunion drew 133 members of the clan to Bangor Memorial Park for food and fellowship.

Horace Jennings of Bangor presided at the meeting with James Jennings of East Bangor giving the opening prayer.

Horace Jennings was re-elected as president. Other officers elected were Vincent Struble, Thompson Lake, N.J., vice president; Beatrice Henderson, Hamberg, N. J., recording secretary; Elva Jennings Kressler, Bangor, corresponding secretary; John Reddinger, Bangor, treasurer.

Charles Lohman of Allentown at 91 took honors as the oldest man. Prizes for oldest women were divided between Mrs. Mary Lohman, Allentown and Mrs. Anna Kline, Ackermanville, 80.

Little Morehouse of St. Petersburg, Fla., came the farthest distance; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jennings, Mount Bethel, married 54 years took longest married honors and Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Shook, Bangor, the newest married.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crane of Hamberg, N. J., with seven children had the largest family, but Mr. and Mrs. James Mader of Stroudsburg had the largest family group with 17 including children and grandchildren.

Youngest boy was Mark Henderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Henderson, Oak Ridge, N. J.; and youngest girl, Penny Louise Crane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crane of Hamberg, N. J.

The program was highlighted by the duet "How Great Thou Art," sung by Joanne Hamlin and William Griffith, both of the Stroudsburgs, taken from a Billy Graham Service, and a trumpet solo by Guy Henderson of Hamberg, N. J.

Let's talk Fashion

It's as much fun looking out as in, these days, because our Back to College window is continually rimmed with the prettiest young faces. Pretty—as with brains behind them, too—because after looking they come in and invest in those Evan Picone and Garland ensembles.

Smart girls recognize them not only as status symbols, but also as wardrobe stretchers de luxe. The perfectly tailored skirts, shorts and slacks, perfectly coordinated to sweaters and tailored or pure silk sweaters in the season's most subtle colors automatically earn a girl straight A's for fashion wisdom.

It's no accident that the pennants in the window are for men's college because these clothes are definitely date bait, and can take a girl straight through classes and a big football weekend.

P. S. There's no rule that fore-sighted high school girls can't invest their vacation job money in them, too, and now while the selection is so complete.

P. P. S. If you're taking a vacation before school opens, don't forget the swim suits will never be cheaper and are still guaranteed to make a big splash at the beach now and all through next summer.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

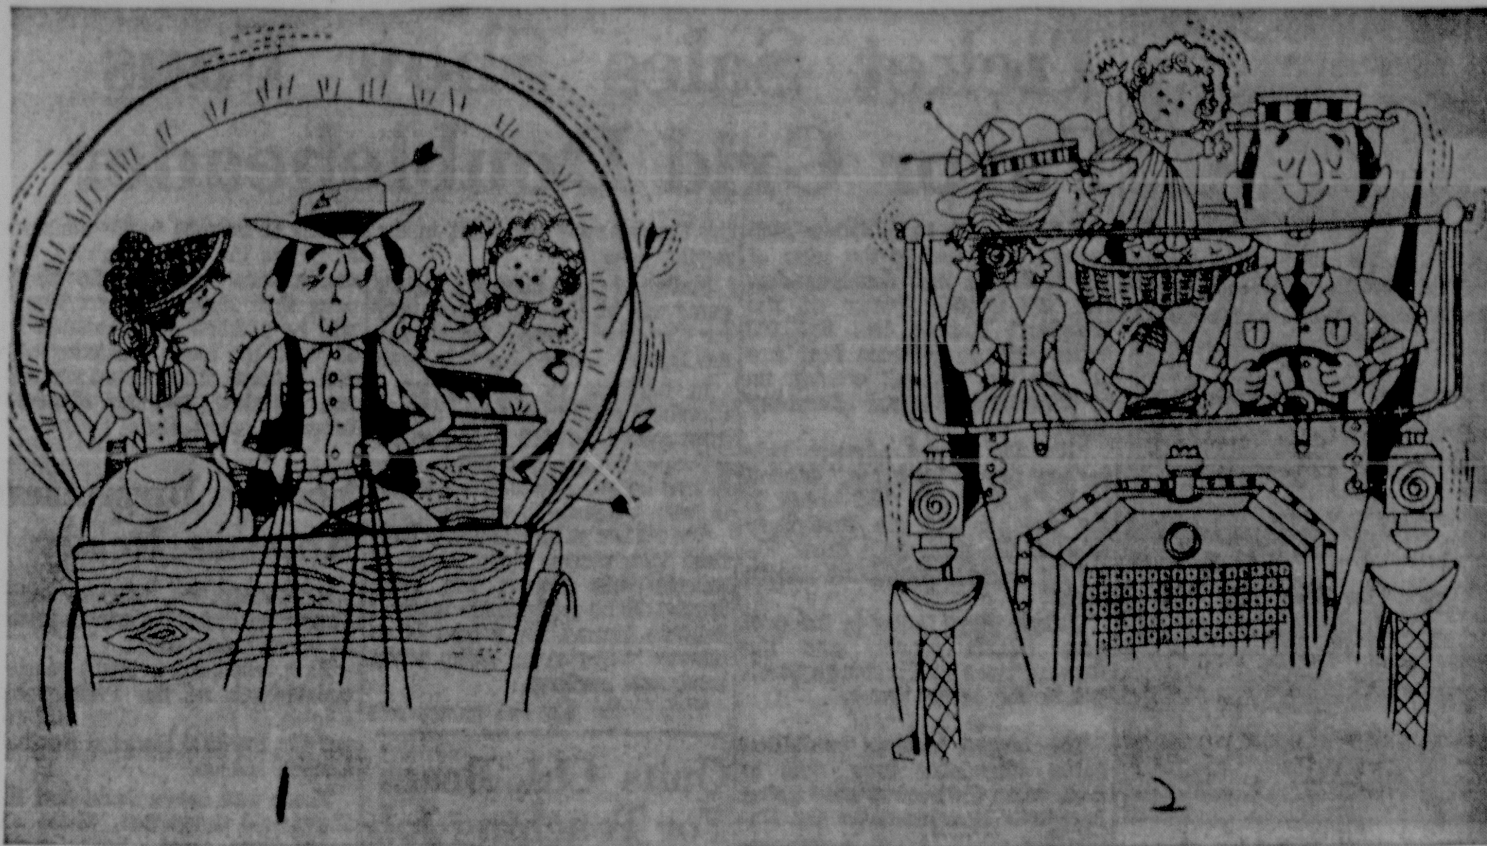

Mrs. William Schulte is a tiny woman with bright dark eyes, a ready smile, wavy white hair, and a knack for creating beauty from bits of velvet, gold braid, paints, and artificial flowers and fruits. A summer resident of Buck Hill, she has just about everything any woman could desire, including a hobby which not only keeps her entertained but also helps support the work of a sister who, for more than 40 years, has been a Presbyterian missionary to China, and is now stationed on Formosa.

I first met Mrs. Schulte a number of weeks ago in our Wyckoff store where she is a frequent, much-welcomed customer. She was carrying an unusual basket-bag decorated with needlepoint slogans, and during our conversation I learned she was to have a display of her work this coming Thursday, August 16th, at Buck Hill Inn. "If you'd like to see it, I'd be glad to come and get you," she volunteered, "and bring you back afterward." Which is what she did this past Monday, much to my delight.

The Schulte home is one of the loveliest on the grounds adjacent to the Inn, and, at the moment, is happily buzzing with grandchildren, the Schultes' daughter, and a perfectly gorgeous Dalmatian named Squire—a champion who joins with the family in making one feel contentedly welcome. My interview with Mrs. Schulte took place in her combination bedroom-studio which was colorfully highlighted everywhere by the many examples of her very considerable skill. Most of the items, basically at least, were familiar to me, for they came from our Wyckoff store . . . but what she has done with them is almost past belief. For instance, she has taken baskets from our Notions department, and transformed them into some of the most beautiful handbags for both daytime and evening wear that I have ever seen. She has used square utility jars of varied sizes from our Gift department (the kind I keep atop my refrigerator with sugar, flour, crackers and tea) and boutique them in such a way they are now elegant vanity dresser or bathroom accessories to hold cosmetic cotton balls or soap. Our footed bowls of antique copper from Iran have been used in pairs and trios to create stately epergnes, lavish with artificial fruits and flowers. Mrs. Schulte has also taken simple wooden boxes and decorated them with gold braid and gold leaf to create important looking dispatch boxes for a man's desk, or pretty trinket boxes to delight a woman. These are popular, she tells me, as 50th Wedding Anniversary gifts. Bath powder has been swathed in velvet and tulle, or topped with flowers. Her accomplishments are endless . . . and while the overall effect is dazzling, if one looks closely one realizes that all of these things were made with great talent and patience from such usual things as ribbons of French brocade and velvet . . . gilded rick rack and other braids . . . feathered birds . . . tiny wooden animals . . . velvet leaves, and applique motifs available in any department store such as Wyckoff's.

No amount of effort or care has been spared in making these articles superbly. Every basket handbag is fully lined, for instance, with either plain corduroy or velvet, brocade or satin (if they are designed for "dressy wear") or with plain or quilted Everglaze cotton if they are for daytime wear. Even the lids are lined, or at least striped with gold braid. A tiny mirror is set upon the underlid, and there is also a miniature repetition of the flower, fruit, bird, or other ornamentation used upon the outside. The effect is very pleasing, and most professional. And each creation has its own label proclaiming it to be handiwork of "Nan."

Why "Nan?" No, it isn't Mrs. Schulte's first name . . . it is the affectionate nickname given her by her grandchildren . . . and it's a signature that is becoming increasingly well known as she displays her creations one day a year at Buck Hill and at other resorts she happens to be visiting, or in her winter residence at Sarasota, Florida. Frankly, her work is well worth seeing, and we hope you will take the time to do so this Thursday at Buck Hill. We even hope you'll be inspired to visit us at Wyckoff's and make an investment in a similar hobby of your own . . . it's one that would delight you and fascinate your friends.

BABIES WHO accompanied frontier families on covered wagon were no longer babies by the time the trips were over and even the bounciest babies of Granny's Day were no competition for the springs of the Model T.

Babies Don't Change But Modern Travel Aids Keep Them Happy

New York, N. Y. (CFN) — If you're planning to take baby on your vacation this summer, remember, travel methods change — but babies don't!

Infants born on our 19th Century frontier cried as loud, kicked as hard, and needed diaper changes as often as our bouncing babies of the 1960's.

But it was the rare frontier toddler who got to go along on a family vacation. As a matter of fact, it was the rare frontier family who took a vacation at all. If baby did get a chance to ride in the family covered wagon, he was no longer a baby by the time the ride was over — providing, of course, he survived such hazards as Indian raids, food shortages, droughts, animal stampedes, prairie storms and the sad lack of Dr. Spock books.

Conditions were a little better for travel-bound babies of Granny's day. But, even the bounciest babes were no competition for the sorry springs of the Model T. Roadside rests were few and far between, as were sources of fresh food and milk and sanitary stop-over spots.

Today, however, conditions are much improved and many babies have logged thousands of travel miles before they've even reached bus-fare age. But travel with baby still requires careful preparation and advance planning.

If you plan a motoring vacation, know in advance how many miles you will travel each day, where and what time you'll stop, and whether or not adequate rest facilities will be available en route. Keep the schedule fairly fixed for each day of the trip. Two hundred miles a day, with time allowed for a leisurely lunch and several leg-stretching periods won't tax an infant if the family stops early enough (around 4:30 p.m.) for the night. You'll find you can keep a toddler content for long stretches of a train, plane, bus or auto trip if you've made him feel at home

TODAY'S TODDLERS can vacation comfortably with the family with improved roads and automobiles, numerous stop-over spots and modern travel aids.

Handicapped Samaritans Give Aid To The Needier

By Roberta Fleming Roesch
There are so many things I'd like to do to help the needs of the world — "If I had the opportunity" or "If I had the money". And I'm willing to bet that that's your case, too, periodically, because all of us, being human, fall prey to this "If-I-if"!

But today I heard of the Go-Getters Club which didn't say "If-I-if" when it heard of something it wanted to do to help fill a need in the world.

Decided To Help
"Actually, when the Go-Getters group first made up their minds that they'd like to 'adopt' a Korean child under the Foster Parent Plan, not one of the club's members had any idea how the club could possibly obtain the $15 it would need each month to adopt a child for a year," a spokesman for the group told me when I went to learn the club's story.

"But the members made up their minds that somehow they would do it," he added.

Accomplishing It
Each month the Go-Getters are doing this, too — even though not one of the club's twelve severely handicapped, cerebral - palsied members is able to work or even go anywhere except to the club's weekly meetings at New York's Federation of the Handicapped, where special buses take the members, in their wheel chairs, out into the world.

The world is important to the Go-Getters, too. They want to give as well as take!

Hold Discussions
Consequently, because of this philosophy, they discuss world problems a lot. And one day while they were talking (even though speech is hard for many of the club members) someone brought up the subject of deprived Korean children who could be given food, clothing and medical care under an "adoption" plan.

"Why don't we adopt a child?" one of the Go-Getters — who smiles and laughs a lot and who believes that many people in the world are much worse off than she is — immediately suggested to the club.

The idea appealed to the members. They found out what they could do, then each pledged 35 cents each week to go toward the care of a child. Those who could speak sold magazines via the telephone.

Helping Hands Of Go-Getters Cloth And Feed Orphan Girl.

phone. In other words, they denied themselves in order to do their best.

Today, because of the Go-Getters' adoption, eight-year-old Lee Kap Soon, who lives in Pusan, Korea, is getting food, clothing and medical care. And she does not wear rags any more.

Growing Well
Although she is still undernourished, she's improving with the Go-Getters' care because they found opportunity to help in the needs of the world.

They've also found the money, despite the size of the task and the fact that, in order to raise it sometimes, they give up gifts for themselves.

These days, when birthdays and Christmas come, they want money instead of gifts. And they much prefer this money, too—because it's for Lee Kap Soon.

Scotsman Working Toward A War

Glasgow, Scotland (AP) — For the past 12 years, Alan Prentice, 24, has been preparing two armies for battle.

When they clash, Prentice hopes to recreate a battle from the American Civil War.

"I became interested in the Civil War as a schoolboy," he explained, "and the interest has heightened."

"I read everything I can about that war."

In the meantime, he makes model soldiers. He has nearly 1,000 — half of them Union soldiers, half of them Confederates.

"They are perfect in detail," he said, "even to the whites of their eyes."

He said it takes an entire evening to make the heads alone, and until he got the knack of the thing, 20 nights to make a soldier.

A salesman, he practices his hobby after work.

The toy soldiers are about two inches tall. They are made of lead and plasticine.

Prentice is also working on a 10 by 8-foot background for the battle. He thinks it'll be Bull Run.

They've Been Working On The Highways This Summer

Washington (AP)—Some 20,000 students this summer found highways the road to a college education.

This estimate comes from the Better Highways Information Foundation, a nonprofit organization supported by contractors and the automotive industry to supply information on highways and their effect on the nation's economy.

In working for state highway departments, the youngsters carried transit compasses, pounded stakes, cleared brush, drove trucks, conducted surveys of road usage, cooked and even designed bridges and roads.

In Connecticut, 54 worked as temporary toll collectors. In remote sections of Alaska, the student workers went about carrying 12-gauge shotguns loaded with bear slugs for protection against bears and cow moose with young calves.

Three students spent most of the summer on Prince of Wales Island, 60 water miles from Ketchikan, receiving supplies twice a week by float plane.

Montana assigned nine college students to public relations work with motorists. They dressed in hard hats and fluorescent vests and at points where traffic was delayed by construction, they went down the line of cars explaining the delay, answering questions about the state and handing out pamphlets.

In working for the highway departments the students earned between $1.25 an hour as laborers to $2.60 for fledgling engineers. The average was $1.60 an hour.

Many of the states have working arrangements with their technical colleges to give preference to civil engineering students and some have year-round cooperative arrangements whereby the students go to school for a given number of months and then work for the highway department the rest of the year in order to earn money to continue their education.

Besides prospective engineers, the highway departments employed a number with other specialties—chemists for testing soils and materials, accountants and urban planners.

Good seasoning trick: add celery salt, along with the usual lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce, to ice-cold tomato juice. Serve as a first course with crisp crackers and a cheese spread.

"Baby's skin needs extra care the summer," advises Dr. R. J. Spahr, Director of Baby Products Research at Chilopee Mills. "A minimum of clothing, baby lotion, frequent warm baths and sunshine are all soothing. But beware of leaving baby in the sun too long. Start with two minutes the first day, divided between 'topside' and 'backside'. Increase by two minutes each day, but never exceed 30 minutes and never expose baby to the hottest sun, between 10 a.m. in the summer," advises Dr. R. J. and 3 p. m. Place the child on a and always keep his eyes away from direct sunlight."

As for feeding, most mothers find that baby's appetite improves as he spends more time in the outdoors, and the infant himself will usually ask or cry for food on a pretty regular schedule. Stick to that schedule as rigidly as possible unless some digestive difficulty demands a change.

If the toddler is on a canned milk formula, fill bottles with sweetening and sterile water for several days ahead. Then, just add the milk, freshly opened, as you need it. As an alternative, you can keep a day's supply of formula in a small picnic ice box. On a long trip, disposable bottles eliminate the sterilizing problem. If you feed out of doors, cover the nipple when you put the bottle down. An older toddler's summer meals should include as much or more protein than usual — favorite sources are gelatin desserts and salads.

We've come a long way since the frontier days when babies and travel didn't mix. Take advantage of the progress and make your vacation a family affair.

Immigration Work Has Funny Side

New Brunswick, N. J. (AP) — Andrew Kvist can recite the citizenship oath without batting an eyelash.

"It comes pretty easy after 40,000 times," he says. That's the number of immigrants he guided toward citizenship in 35 years of naturalization work.

At 70, Kvist has retired as chief of the Middlesex County Naturalization Bureau.

He was known as a gentle man, always ready to offer a smile and a friendly word to bewildered youngsters and frightened oldsters going through the naturalization process.

One of the best rewards he got from his work was laughter. He remembers an old woman who came to his office with her small grandson.

"Mother," he asked, "what color is the flag?"

She didn't understand, so he led her to a window and pointed to the flag over city hall.

"What flies over the city hall?" he asked.

"Pigeons," she said. Kvist, a native of South Amboy who lives in New Brunswick with his wife Gertrude, says his favorite story is about the flag and Tony, an old vendor.

The presiding judge asked Tony, before the oath taking, the number of stars in the flag.

Tony addressed him respectfully. "Mr. Judge, your business — judge. My business — bananas. How many stars — your business. How many bananas — my business."

Oven-Ready Suppers Can Salvage A Summer Day

By Linda Pipher
Daily Record Home Economist

Summer's flying by fast and I'll bet you haven't done half the things you promised yourself you were going to do before Labor Day. When the first hot day hit in May, did you dream of swimming, golfing, picnics, or just look forward to a lazy day of doing lots of nothing?

Better hurry up, because you only have three weeks left. At least find one lazy day to loaf, but, of course, you still have to cook, and what's better than something you can fix in the morning, and pop into the oven late in the afternoon?

Barbara Tucker asked me for one-dish meals; I love them any time of the year, but we both agreed that they make good summer suppers. Cook in the morning, play all day (?), and no guilt complex when you serve the evening meal! Toss a salad and add big hard rolls, and you've got it made.

You'll have to pardon the name of this first one, but that's what it's called. My sister, Jane, brought me the recipe from Puerto Rico when she visited P-tty Weiss a couple of years ago.

Puerto Rican Glop
Brown in a skillet:
1 1/2 pounds hamburger
1 medium onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 green pepper, chopped
Add:
1 can whole kernel corn, drained (use fresh cut corn if you have it)
2 cans tomato (No. 2 cans.)
1 can tomato paste
12 sliced olives

Simmer mixture for 15 minutes. Add one 8 ounce box egg noodles, cooked, and pour into casserole. Top with grated sharp cheese. Bake one hour at 350 degrees.

Every once in a while you find a recipe by chance that is delicious and you make often. Two years ago I happened to try this next recipe that I found in one of our women's magazines; I could not resist finding out if it tasted as good as it looked in the photograph. It has turned out to be one of my very favorites. This can be prepared in the morning and put in a casserole in the refrigerator. Make the pie crust dough in the morning, and store in waxed paper in the refrigerator. Half an hour before supper, roll it out, put on top of the meat, and bake.

If this is too much for your family, freeze individual meat pies with the extra. Bake frozen pies 45 minutes to one hour at 400 degrees.

Wonderful Beef Pie
2 pounds beef chuck or round
3/4 cup flour
3 tablespoons shortening
Two-thirds cup tomato juice
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 teaspoons salt
1 bay leaf
2 cloves
4 carrots
8 tiny white onions
3 potatoes
1 stalk celery
Two-thirds cup peas
Dash pepper

Cut the meat into 1 1/4 inch cubes. Dredge with flour; place in Dutch oven, and brown in shortening. Add 3 cups boiling water, tomato juice, Worcestershire, salt, pepper, bay leaf, and cloves. Cover; simmer 1 1/2 hours, or until tender.

Meanwhile, prepare vegetables. Peel carrots, potatoes, and onions. Wash and cut celery into slices. Shell peas, or use canned peas, drained. After meat has cooked 1 1/2 hours, add vegetables and cook another 30 minutes.

To thicken gravy: remove vegetables and meat; set aside. Mix 3 tablespoons flour and 3 tablespoons water and thicken. Combine everything and top with crust. Bake at 425 degrees for 30 minutes.

Save the small foil pans in which some frozen cooked foods come; wash thoroughly and dry. Use them for individual pineapple upsidedown cakes; you can serve some of these as soon as baked and put the rest in your freezer for use another time.

Herbed Crust
1 1/2 cups All-Purpose flour
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dill
1/2 cup shortening
3-4 tablespoons water

Measure flour, salt, and dill into bowl. Add 1/4 cup shortening and cut with pastry blender until mixture looks like cornmeal. Add remaining 1/4 cup shortening and cut until mixture is size of small peas. Add water one tablespoon at a time, tossing with a fork. Press into a ball and roll on floured board in shape to fit casserole. Roll thicker than for a pie.

This next casserole is quick, easy, and very tasty:

Easy Casserole
Brown one medium onion, and 1/2 green pepper with 1 pound hamburger. In a greased casserole put one layer of browned mixture, 1/2 can creamed corn, sliced fresh, juicy tomatoes. Repeat layers, and top with grated sharp cheese. Put in a 350 degree oven for 35-45 minutes or until mixture is bubbly and cheese is melted.

YOUNG CONDUCTOR
Yonkers, N. Y. (AP) — The newly organized Yonkers Philharmonic Society has what it believes may be the youngest conductor of such a group in the world.

The maestro is Joey Alfidi, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Alfidi.

The young pianist won wide recognition in 1959 during a three-week tour of Europe in which he met in special audience with Pope John XXIII and gave the Pontiff an original composition written in his honor.

APPROVED BY THE PRODUCTION CODE ADMINISTRATION

Highlights

TELEVISION will explore the world of economics in an unprecedented series of CBS News special broadcasts on five successive week-day evenings in prime time periods, August 20-24. "Money Talks," with Professor John R. Comeman of Carnegie Institute of Technology, will be presented next week in the following time periods: Monday, 10:30 to 11 p. m.; Tuesday, 9:30 to 10 p. m.; Wednesday, 7:30 to 8 p. m.; Thursday, 10 to 10:30 p. m.; Friday, 10 to 10:30 p. m. Subjects to be examined are the role of government in business, money and growth, inflation, credit and taxes, business profits and re-investment and the international flow of gold.

Has the Alliance for Progress made any progress? "Howard K. Smith—News and Comment" will examine the economic alliance between the United States and its Latin American neighbors on the Alliance's First Anniversary, Chs. 6 and 7 from 7:30 to 8, this evening.

On channel 6 from 8 to 8:30 "The Land of the Distelfink" will be presented. This is a colorful tour of the Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival at Kutztown, Pa. . . . showing a fascinating part of Americana . . . apple butter making . . . soap making . . . folk dancing . . . farming methods and foods.

From 8:30 to 9 on "The Rebel" Johnny Yuma faces a 14-year-old boy in a shoot out. Nick Adams stars, Chs. 3 and 4.

Brilliant young actor Keri Dulea can be seen tonight on a rerun episode of "Checkmate" from 8:30 to 9:30, Chs. 2 and 10. Dina Merrill co-stars in this story of an art teacher and an angry student.

On "Mystery Theatre" from 9 to 10, Chs. 3 and 4, Keri Dulea stars in "Cry Rite." Larry Gates, Richard Anderson and Ellen McRae also star in this story of a powerful politician whose neglect of his son leads the boy to violence.

Speaking of young actors, on Chs. 6 and 7 from 10 to 11 Mike McGreevey portrays an emotionally insecure boy who is intelligent and tough in a "Naked City" episode. Jack Warden portrays a criminal who invades the boy's secret hiding place. This rerun story is well worth seeing. McGreevey and Warden do a beautiful job of acting. Barbara Baxley is also featured in the cast.

Tonight's "Circle Theatre" rerun from 10 to 11, Chs. 2 and 10, is the true story of a Polish Jew and his sister who were saved from Nazi terrorists by a Roman Catholic farm family. Alexander Scourby stars, Marketa Kimbrell, Lydia Bruce, Carl Low and Anne Hegira are in the cast.

"David Brinkley's Journal" will repeat a filmed profile of wrestler Antonio Rocca, depicting his life inside and outside the ring. Chs. 3 and 4 from 10:30 to 11. Hugh Downs' guests on "Tonight" are: Marissa, Bob and Ray, Louis Lomax, Paul Dooley, Chs. 3 and 4 from 11:15 to 1 a. m.

Deanna Durbin and Franchot Tone star in "Nice Girl" on "World's Best Movies," channel 6 from 11:30 to conclusion. (A 1941 release).

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Wednesday, August 15, 1962
March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You can add fresh stimulus to the day by using your rare talent for transferring knowledge to others in a striking manner. Make opportunity for a bright idea.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Don't believe everything you hear now, but look for truth, and when you find it, respect it. Rumors may be spread deliberately. A good opportunity is in the offing.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Thank those who desire to extend your able hand where it could truly help, forget old woes. Plan, think about how splendid things can be under still able management — yours especially.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Your vocational activities will be your best source of satisfaction now. Lead without seeming to, and be mindful of the personal wishes of others concerned.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — A rewarding day for all who play by the rules, and have a working knowledge of their own strengths. Day can be rough on the delayer, the dreamer, Steadiness, well-knit plans needed.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Admonitions for Wednesday. Avoid hasty judgments but do not hesitate about accepting cooperation from reliable sources. Do not dress from worthless aims.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Don't go against present trends or you may find yourself at unhappy variance with associates who could be helpful. Scrutinize all offerings.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Business financial, industrial matters slated for immediate advance also for future gains. But you must do what you do ON TIME, not have to rush later to "get it in."

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — Be on guard against schemers; also those who talk big without solid background or meaning and flatterers. Sagittarians are noted for their good judgment. Use your best NOW.

War I Vets May Convert Insurance

WORLD War I veterans 65 or older holding USGLI term insurance policies may now convert to a lower-cost form of insurance as the result of a bill signed into law by President Kennedy on Wednesday, July 25.

The new plan of insurance, called "Special Endowment at Age 96," primarily provides death protection only. The premium, which remains level throughout the life of the policy, is lower than the premium for the term policy which is being exchanged.

Veterans Administration officials warned that not all holders of USGLI term policies should make the change. Those disabled should keep their original term policies which provide a monthly income in the event of total permanent disability while at the same time waiving the insurance premium.

At time of exchange a provision for premium waiver in case of total permanent disability may be added to the new policy at an extra premium.

It will not be necessary for World War I term policyholders to write or telephone the Veterans Administration regarding the new plan of insurance. The VA will notify all eligible policyholders and will send them full information concerning conversions of present policies.

Liberty Bell Marks Wall

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Liberty Bell, silenced many years by its famous crack, was rung yesterday to signal the first anniversary of the Berlin Wall.

City Council President Paul D. Ortona used an eight-inch rubber mallet and pounded on the bell in Independence Hall for about two minutes.

Pictures and recordings of the event are scheduled to be shown here and in Europe in protest of the Berlin Wall.

Authorities fear that if the Liberty Bell were struck in a more conventional manner it would be split.

Nuclear Threat To Be Discussed

BLAIRSTOWN, N. J. — The threat of nuclear war, and man's ability to avoid or survive it, will be the topic of a public meeting and symposium at the Stillwater Methodist Church, Sunday, August 19, at 8 p.m.

The Rev. John Dow, of Sparta Methodist Church, will present the church's view of the world crisis; Col. Albert F. Hogle, Sussex County Civil Defense — disaster control officer in charge of training and operations, and William Nesbitt, chairman of the History Department at Blair Academy, Blairstown, and chairman of the Sussex-Warren Committee for a SANE Nuclear Policy, will speak briefly on the programs and policies of the organizations they represent.

The audience will be invited to submit questions to the speakers. The Rev. Anthony B. Fadely of

NEW SEARS CUSTOMERS
Sears recent 17 day National Home Appliance sale brought in four-score new customers who are now highly satisfied.

Kenmore, Coldspot and Silvertone are their purchases of satisfaction. Many of these folks have asked us to help them sell their used appliances. We agreed, and brought the items down to our warehouse.

If you're interested in a workable used appliance, whether it be a refrigerator, range, freezer, washer, dryer, or TV set here's an opportunity to get a bargain. Come in to Sears this week and ask for Mr. Depue in our appliance Department.

Bangor Area Starts All-Out Drive To Eliminate Polio

BANGOR — The all-out program to eliminate polio in the Bangor area got underway this week with the meeting of a group of volunteers under the leadership of Dr. Wesley Stancombe, a spokesman for Bangor area physicians.

Dr. Stancombe announced that this community will join in the Northampton County plan under the sponsorship of the Northampton County Medical Association to administer oral vaccine to all residents between the ages of six-months and 60 years.

The plan calls for the feeding of Types I, II, and III polio vaccine on three separate dates. The first type will be made available Oct. 3; the second on Nov. 7, and the third on December 12. All doses are necessary for full immunity.

In addition to the pre-schoolers and adults of the community, an estimated 3,200 school children will be administered the dosage by medical personnel in public and parochial schools.

Bangor Area Joint Schools that will be set up as feeding stations for the public are: Senior High School, Five Points; Junior High School, Bangor; Columbus School, Roseto; East Bangor School, East Bangor, and Washington Township School.

Portland Fire Hall

The Portland Fire Hall will be used in Portland because of its accessibility. A token donation of 25 cents per adult and 10 cents per pre-schooler will help defray expenses. The vaccine is free to those who cannot afford to pay.

Those participating in the program thus far include: Nurses Marie Harding, Kathryn Hilyard, Katherine Smith, Pearl Carvella, Mrs. Athea LaBar, Washington Township principal, Mrs. Cornelia Stiles, East Bangor principal, PTA Presidents, Mr. Andrew Merlo, Mrs. Pat Reed, Mrs. Bette Gress, Mrs. Ella Hewitt, Mrs. Thelma Rosato, Mrs. V. Rauscher.
